A MAY BE SYDNEY'S SECRET WEAPON

Croatias in clash of the century

• Luka Bonacic raises both fists in triumph and is congratulated by Steve Gojevic, Davor Todorovic and Josip Biskic after scoring the winning goal in the 1986 Buffalo Gold Cup final. See story page 7. Picture: LES SHORROCK.

ste Rumora from Dinamo Zagreb could line-up which clashes with Melbourne's FFA League Shield match at Olympic Park at winning club pocketing $5,000.

Saturday, would be one of a host of stars to what should be an enthralling encounter

ers of the Buffalo and Airport Cups will be in on Sunday — Melbourne's Gary Ward

will be in the heart of Sydney's midfield, displaying qualities which won him career berth last year. No doubt still make off Preston Makedonia, former club, regret they parted company with the former Vardar star.

ham Jennings, who Sydney Croatia's for 00, comes face to face with Josip Biskic. It may be strange, but if Rumora Jennings' job may be more difficult for Rumora is an attacking player and does not possess the qualities to keep Dejanovic, the finest right back in Australia now, in check. Kovacic and Biskic have no common understanding at right flank and if Rumora's he's likely to re-shape Clinch on the of Sydney Croatia's side.

don't underestimate He knows most of the Croatian players and will be well aware of the right.

Bleiberg switched both Dejanovic and Biskic to the left in Melbourne Croatia's 3-2 semi-final win over George Cross and may consider a similar ploy to confuse 'Foxes' match plan.

The clash between Melbourne Croatia stopper Dave McIntosh and Sydney Croatia's striker Graham Arnold should be well worth watching. McIntosh and Carl Gilder of George Cross has an almighty battle in the Buffalo Gold Cup semi-final. Gilder rarely runs past McIntosh and Arnold will find that task awesome.

Similarly, the battle between one of Melbourne Croatia's amazing heroes, the ever reliable George Hannah, and Sydney Croatia's Jurin will be spellbinding. Jurin has skill to burn while Hannah is one of the really great competitors in the National League — that means that we're in for a treat when they confront each other.

Sydney Croatia is almost certain to try to catch out its Melbourne foe on the break. Indeed, such a tactic has been come Sydney Croatia's half-time.

Melbourne Croatia sweeper Tony Curcio will be kept on his toes throughout this absorbing encounter.

Melbourne Croatia and Sydney Croatia made three trips last year with the Victorian outfit winning each time. In the Croatian Cup in Adelaide, Melbourne Croatia won 1-0 with McIntosh the scorer. In their clash to celebrate the opening of North Geelong's new complex, Melbourne Croatia won 2-0.

with goals by Biskic and Ward and in a friendly in Sydney, Melbourne Croatia won 3-1 with Ward scoring twice.

At the risk of sounding parochial, I'm going for Melbourne Croatia to win what could prove the clash of the century. I'll certainly be at Olympic Park on Sunday to watch the skill and flair of Steve Gojevic, Jurin, Biskic, Odrzak, Bonacic, Wally Savo, Davor Todorovic and hopefully Rumora.

Belic: watch out for JUST!

By LAURIE SCHWAB

Led by the legendary Drago Sekularac and equipped with the finest attack since the days of Slobodan Zoraja and Branko Buljevic, Footscray JUST is set for its best season in the NSL.

A six-figure sponsorship of Brisbane Lions by Foster's Lager (Carlton and United Breweries) ultimately could reap the club extra match points in Melbourne this season.

Part of the sponsorship includes pre-match overnight stays for all of Lions' games in the Victorian capital this season.

And Lions coach Gordon Arrowsmith is ecstatic.

"Last year many of the players complained of tiredness just before the match after travelling for several hours. It made us very vulnerable in the opening minutes and in quite a few matches in Melbourne last year we conceded early goals," Arrowsmith said.

This year Lions will travel to Melbourne on Saturday afternoon and the team will spend the night at a leisure activity or discussing the next day's match. The team will include a light training and a specially prepared brunch.

"Food proved another problem when we were travelling. We could never get the right food at the right time and subsequently the players were eating not enough early on or too much too close to the game," Arrowsmith said.

"But Foster's are organizing their hotels to give special high energy food stuffs," Arrowsmith said. "It's a very professional approach and we are grateful for the assistance from Carlton."

Lions presently are on their north Queensland tour, also part of the sponsorship, and played three matches last week as a final warm-up for the NSL season.

— RICKY ROSSO

And its success, says midfielder Vlatko Belic, will be the result of Sekularac's professional approach and the toughest training regime the players have had since 1978.

Belic and his teammates are undaunted by the realization that they must finish at least in the top five if they are to be included in the elite 14-team league next year.

"The players realise that finishing in the top five is the only way we'll survive in the league," he says, "and we're all determined to do it."

Sekularac has been training his men six and seven times a week since he arrived from Yugoslavia along with his three recruits, Vlado Stosic, Zoran Nikolic and Vojislav Vukcevic.

More recruits were being considered as we went to press — Steve Dimovski from Western Suburbs, Paul Simic from Broadmeadows and Vlado Bozinovski from Hellas.

JUST showed a sign of things to come when it thrashed Makedonia 5-0 in a pre-season match. Stosic, from Red Star, was sensational, and Ossie Latif scored a hat-trick.

"We've finally got a strike force that looks for the ball, that's willing to take on opponents and shoot at every opportunity," Stosic and Latif look like the best we've had since Buljevic and Zoraja," Belic said.

Belic, 24, is in his eighth senior season with JUST. His first game was against Brisbane City in 1978, but when Zdravko Lujic and Igor Hazzard arrived from Yugoslavia, he lost his place and didn't become a regular until 1980.

He's been quite a heavy smoker and admits that it's affected his fitness but to cope with Sekularac's training demands, he's reduced his smoking by half, and hasn't touched a drink in a month.

"I used to light up after training. Now I'm so tired I can't even look at a smoke," he says.

Belic and goalkeeper Nikolic have been training seven days a week, while others are getting away with only six nights.

"It's been doing us the world of good," he says. "Players have to be fit to play in this league. Fitness is even more important than skill."

"Last year I was troubled by my Achilles and my ankles. It took me half a season to get properly fit, then I got injured again and finished up missing half the season.

"Now I'm on the way to being fitter than I've ever been. So are the other players. They don't like it much, having to go every night, but they're not saying much about it. It won't go on indefinitely. Probably another two weeks at this level, and then we'll taper off."

"But you'll see a drastic improvement by JUST. In the pre-season, all our players complained if the balls weren't played directly to their feet. Against Makedonia there were no complaints at all. Everyone was willing to chase, because they all felt so fit."

"It was a big contrast to our game against Makedonia in the Buffalo Cup because that night, we all had lead in our legs from the hard training. Now the soreness is slowly disappearing as we get more used to this level of training."

"In the past, we never trained the night before a game. But we've been doing that under Seki. I've found it keeps your body in rhythm. You train in the evening, then you're raring to get stuck into a real game the next day."

A good season is way overdue as far as Belic is concerned. He's been wanting to play as he has enjoyed playing for himself every year that this would be the big one. You want something to show for your efforts. A little trophy, maybe. But it's been depressing at JUST because we've always been so far down the ladder. It will change this year, mark my words."

Sekularac, star of two World Cup campaigns with Yugoslavia, takes part in ball work and spends a lot of time at training with goalkeepers Nikolic and Zoran Vlajic. His brilliant skills remain intact.

"He's unbelievable with the ball," says Belic. "He sells you dummy and it's very hard to read him. He's got great shot with both feet and he can still beat you with the ball in confined areas. The only way to get the ball off him is to kick him in the leg."

Goalkeeper Vukcevic, who looked slow and sluggish in the Buffalo Cup, has improved a lot as his fitness increases. "He was carrying a bit of weight, and he was running in the heat with his track suit on to help him get it down," Belic says.

Simic, a former JUST top scorer who wants to return from Broadmeadows after almost a year away from soccer, also has a lot of weight to shed. He is certain to be signed.

Stosic, 21, is adjusting more quickly than the other two imports.

Belic raves about the boy. "He's got no fitness problem at all, he's very skilful and he likes to take on opponents, just like Ossie Latif. It's very hard to steal the ball from him because he shields it so well. He played outside right against Makedonia, but he cut inside a lot, and he's prepared to shoot."

best thing that could possibly be done," Belic says.

Belic speculates that Sekularac probably wants him to play a more defensive midfield role this year, to balance the more attacking qualities of fellow midfielder Ernie Tapai and Zdravko Lujic on the wing.

Nikolic will be in goal, Ljubo Petrovski at right back, Vukcevic as sweeper, Tom Karic at stopper and Stosic and Latif up front. That takes care of nine positions.

The soccer player: does exhaustion make him a bad husband and father?

Let's follow Brazil, says Gully boss

By LAURIE SCHWAB

Green Gully president Guy Spiteri agreed with George Cross boss Alf Zahra that State-based super leagues, with national play-offs, will be introduced within two seasons, and that the proposed 14-team NSL will work.

Zahra aired his views in "Soccer Action" last week. Green Gully, like George Cross, has only a minimal chance of being included among the elite 14 next year because of a low score in the past performance criterion.

Green Gully has 23.7 points out of 48 for past performance; George Cross has 22.

"It's a year of marking time for Green Gully," Spiteri said. "We don't believe we've got a chance to get into the 14-team league, and even if we did, we're not at all sure whether it would be wise to be part of it."

"If the past performances of other clubs are worked out over nine seasons, why don't they do the same for the newer clubs?" Green Gully won three State League championships during this period, so we'd rank a lot higher."

"But I can't see the 14-team league lasting long. A lot of clubs don't know what they've let themselves in for. When the whole argument started, and Hellas said they wanted a 14-team league, the NSL chairman, Sam Papasavas, warned that it would cost each club a lot of money. He mentioned a figure of about $40,000 each, but that was almost 12 months ago.

"I didn't have put one over on Melbourne politically in getting guaranteed promotion to the NSL from the NSW State League, while Melbourne has to play off against Brisbane and Adelaide for the other promotion spot. If Melbourne clubs drop out and are not replaced, then the remaining Melbourne clubs will find themselves with insufficient matches against home-town opposition."

"When they were part of the old 14-team league a few years ago, the clubs complained that their fans were losing interest because they were seeing their team only every second week. That will again be the case."

"The only competition appropriate to Australia is a system of State leagues with one-off-year national play-offs. Brazil, a big country with a huge soccer following, has exactly such a system, yet we keep looking to the English model which does not suit our conditions."

During the politicking last year, it was suggested at an NSL meeting in Sydney that the two Brisbane teams should switch from the Southern to the Northern Division, increasing the North to 14 clubs and reducing the South to 10. The Southern clubs then would play each other three times instead of twice, to make up the numbers.

Hakkaah's Sam Fiszman, spokesman for the Sydney clubs, opposed the move and it was then agreed that the Southern Division would be subsidised $46,000 by the North as compensation for keeping the Brisbane teams.

"We haven't seen the money yet," Spiteri said. "Our $16,000 affiliation fee is being billed at the rate of $2000 a month. I reckon when we've paid $11,000, we should tell the league to collect the rest from the Sydney clubs."

Andrew Dettre

So you think players are overpaid? Maybe. At times I feel even a slob or a devalued drachma is too much for them.

But at other, more rational times, I feel they are almost as badly off financially as some of those newly-arrived migrant women in our garment industry sweatshops.

What's more, several wives agree with me. I talked to three at length this week — and they all laughed at my suggestion that Australian soccer's top-time stars are on easy street.

Said Margaret: "At first I used to think back in the UK, that's lovely, we'll make a very nice living with J having a job and earning this extra from soccer. I can stay home with the baby."

"But first of all the money isn't all that much — and very often the club is weeks behind with payments."

"Secondly, hardly anybody cares what we have to put up with to earn this, what kind of disruption it means to our family life. I have to work late — four nights a week, groans a few words to us and falls asleep. I might as well be married to a Zombie."

"Our son is growing up and soon I expect him to ask me about that strange man he sees occasionally at the breakfast table — his father."

Margaret says her husband last year earned from soccer about $30,000 and most of it was "stolen" by the club to be tax-free. "If we had to pay tax as well, I'd say it wasn't worth it at all."

Janet is less militant about it all though she also denied that her husband, an established first-time man, will be a millionaire through soccer.

"We both work," she says, "and three times a week he goes to training. I need to be home, cook dinner and wait for him. It's usually 8.30 or a bit later that he gets home, exhausted."

"During the week we never have the time or the energy to go out in the evenings, not even to visit relatives. This is only possible on Saturdays, if the match is on Sundays."

"I have to help him with many of the chores around the house, like the maintenance and the garden because, on his own, he wouldn't have the time."

"Money? Well, it's useful, as we are saving for a home and to start a family — but it's not all that much. I don't know exactly but I'd say last year he earned about $12,000 with bonuses and contracts."

"That's not much less than I earned but it is my trade women are paid like slaves, so it's not his $12,000 that is high but my $14,000 that is low."

"Is it worth it? I guess so; he would probably play even if they didn't pay him a penny. But if you start to think in terms of hours and sacrifices, then you wonder why some people envy us in the first place and why some club officials think our husbands are greedy buggers."

The third lady in question, Helen, seemed quite content with her lot.

"I knew what to expect before we got married, so I am not whining. Besides, we need that extra money. Last year he earned around $10,000 and that was a big help to furnish the house and run the car."

"The hours involved are long and he deserves every penny he gets."

So what do they really earn? I take the average of the standard established Sydney player's income at $10,000 a year — though most, I would say, earn less.

This "year" runs from January

Players' wives don't dream of mink and diamonds

That makes it a "workin' week" of about 18 hours devoted to soccer — to $10,000 a year.

Divide the $10,000 by the 4 weeks (length of season) and you get about $250 pw. Divide that by the 18 hours and it works out at less than $1 an hour — which is roughly tradesmen's wages.

What's NOT included in these calculations is the risk of injury and loss of wages an bonuses (plus further loss of wages from the full-time job ... ) and the numerous occasions when not only the husband, wife and often children have to make to accommodate a soccer player odd schedule.

NEW ERA OF SUPER STARS?

Europe may scrap its quota systems

LES MURRAY

A MAJOR soccer dilemma, likely to end in a confrontation between European associations and governments, ought to be watched with interest in Australia.

It concerns player movements or the admissible transfer of players from country to country.

The root of the trouble is the Commission of the European Economic Community which has called for unrestricted movement by players between member countries.

Strictly speaking the limits put on clubs within the EEC countries regarding the number of foreign players they are allowed to field is already illegal.

That limit is generally two per club, as in Italy, Spain and West Germany, the countries which wield the largest carrots when it comes to attracting foreign players.

UEFA, the European arm of FIFA, the member associations and European soccer officials in general are informed and are fighting the EEC's battle.

England is particularly frightened at the prospect of losing the cream of its players. Recently FA secretary Ted Croker led a three-man delegation to Whitehall to plead the case with the British government and ask for its support.

They are not likely to get it and neither are other associations with similar lobbies with their governments although that seems to be the last chance to dissuade the EEC.

UEFA has also lobbied strongly with the EEC Commission but have, in suggesting to its member associations that they should all individually lobby with their own governments.

UEFA says unrestricted player movement between countries would cause chaos in football.

They should accept that and frankly why should it?

The law in all EEC countries is that a citizen of one country can be employed in another country without restriction.

If you're British you don't, in other words, need a work permit to be employed in Italy and vice versa.

So why should soccer players be different? Why should a footballer be denied a job with a foreign club if that club wants to employ him when an engineer, or an au-pair girl, or a truck driver doesn't?

The issue of foreign players and their foreign players and their quotas has been a matter of contention since the early '60s when there were no quotas and indeed some clubs had more foreigners than natives playing for them.

The import mania was such that it even resulted in the comical dual, or even triple, nationality status of some players.

László Kubala, for instance, played for Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Spain; Ferenc Puskás for Hungary and Spain; Juan Schiaffino for Uruguay and Italy; Omar Sívori for Argentina and Italy. And so on.

Then came the ruling that no player who had played for a country shall be eligible to play for another, and the quota system which resulted from the fear that foreigners were filling the positions of locals and that the development of home talent was hindered by their presence.

It was much like the fear in Australia which now sees us on the other side of the coin where good overseas talent is being denied us in preference to, in many cases, home-bred mediocrities.

In fact, for long in Europe there was no even a quota system. Spain and Italy completely closed their doors and there were Schuster, Zicos, Platini and Maradonas to be seen.

I have always felt the restriction of foreign players was a good idea and was opposed to it due to the cause of nurturing home talent.

No Sívori, Puskás or Di Stefano mean no superstars to look up to and learn from. I also meant excellence was unachievable with money. Clubs would have to use more mediocre, more workmanlike players to get their results.

Using workmanlike players means you cannot rely on individual brilliance for results. It means you have to rely more on tactics than technique. And that means you are forced to devise whatever tactics it takes to win or avoid losing.

And so the paranoia about foreigners probably had a hand in the development of negativity and percentage football. And that does more to restrict the development of natural talent than anything.

But back to Europe's present predicament. If the EEC Commission wins its case, and I have the power to do so, Europe will certainly have its problems.

Heaven help the poorer clubs, for the richer ones would go to the best players.

For football as a whole, I don't know.

The richer clubs would also end up with better teams, teams of stars and individual Europe has not seen since the '50s.

There would be a greater need for play excellence, a higher demand for match-winning stars. Logically that should produce better players.

Australia, not being an EEC nation, would appear to be unaffected.

But it might be.

If European clubs are forced to drop their quotas altogether it means they may be able to sign foreigners, with work permits, from anywhere.

Including Australia!

And, with a Europe under a free market system where demand will eventually outstrip supply, Australia would become one more source of talent.

There may be more Crinos and Patkase going west.

Northern Ireland will appear in World Cup finals for the third time.

In 1958 (after disposing of Italy in the qualifying rounds), it beat Czechoslovakia twice and drew with Cup holders West Germany. In 1962, saw the Irish team above host Spain and the highly-rated Yugoslavs to reach the second stage. Little wonder then that Northern Ireland is recognised as the most persistent of international football's giant-killers.

Great hopes exist for the Irish to collect another scalp or two in Mexico. Perhaps expectations are too high.

Northern Ireland opens its campaign in Guadalajara against an Algerian team far more familiar with the inevitable hot conditions.

The Irish team are notorious for vulnerability when facing opponents who, on paper, appear weaker (Finland beat them in the qualifying rounds, whereas Turkey ended aspirations during the last European Championship) and the north Africans are fully capable of creating a surprise on June 3.

Four days later, Northern Ireland meets a Spanish side surely intent upon gaining revenge for the 1-0 defeat suffered at Valencia in 1982 and the Group D programme is completed with a game against tournament favorite Brazil on June 12.

Northern Ireland's greatest strength is an amazing team spirit, strong enough to turn a team composed largely of undistinguished English League professionals into a combination of strength, determination, fire and not a little flair.

That spirit enabled the Irish to come through the crucial climax of their qualifying round without the aid of injured stalwarts John McLelland, Martin O'Neill and Billy Hamilton. At the time of writing, the fitness of this trio was still in doubt.

However, evergreen Pat Jennings appears certain to be in Mexico, by then probably the most capped player in international soccer history.

Every neutral will hope he caps of a remarkable career by helping write another chapter in the Irish giant-killings saga.

Although Northern Ireland ranks among the World Cup's 'little people', there is nothing small about Norman Whiteside — either physique or ability.

Whiteside made an enormous impression as a 17-year-old in Spain and subsequently has become one of the superstars of English domestic soccer.

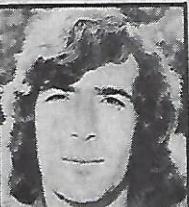

Now comes an opportunity to enhance his reputation worldwide.

Possible Squads

PAT JENNINGS (Tottenham Hotspur). One of the most popular figures in modern international soccer, 41 on June 12 (when Northern Ireland meet Brazil in Jalisco), he became a professional in 1963 upon leaving his home town amateur club Newry Town to join Watford. Won FA Cup winners' medals at Arsenal and Tottenham, plus a UEFA Cup winners' memento with the latter, but it is his feats for Northern Ireland which have assured him of a place in world football folklore. Beat Dino Zoff's world record for international appearances by a goalkeeper when winning his 113th cap against England in November and should overtake Bjorn Rogqvist's 115 game total before the finals start.

JIM PLATT (Coleraine). In

PAT SET FOR RECORD

By PAUL MOON

Jennings' shadow since making Northern Ireland debut in 1976, but has still collected over 20 caps when the great man was unavailable through club commitments or injuries.

GEORGE DUNLOP (Linfeld). Likeliest to succeed Jennings and Platt when they retire, he won his first senior cap in 1985, three years after travelling to Spain as third-string goalkeeper.

MAL DONAGH (Luton Town). Equally able at left back, right back, centre back or in midfield, but originally a goalkeeper with his first club — the Post Office Social Club. After playing for other minor Irish outfits Cramond Albion and Larne, he moved across the Irish Sea to join Luton in 1978.

ALLAN MCDONALD (Queen's Park Rangers). The revelation of the qualifying round campaign, being superb against both Romania (on his senior international debut) and England.

JIMMY NICHOLL (West Bromwich Albion). A familiar flame-haired, high-profile defender of Manchester United throughout the late 1970s, before moving, in turn, to Toronto, Blizzard Sunderland, Glasgow Rangers and West Bromwich Albion.

JOHN O'NEILL (Leicester City). A utility defender who moved to Leicester from home town amateur club Derry Athletic in 1979 shortly after graduating from university. Made only a substitute's appearance (against France) during the last World Cup finals, but likely to experience more activity this time.

JOHN MCLELLAND (Watford). Missed business end of World Cup qualifiers, being sidelined by a broken toe. He was a great success in Spain four years ago, after rising from obscurity (Portsmouth, Cardiff City, Bangor City and Mansfield Town) to captain Glasgow Rangers. His $450,000 transfer to Watford two years ago was a major factor in that club's success in fighting against relegation.

MARTIN O'NEILL (Notts County). Out of action for over a year with a knee injury, this terrier of a midfielder will travel to Mexico as the squad's commercial manager if unable to regain full fitness. Won a string of domestic and European honors during 10 years at Nottingham Forest (1971-81), before moving to Norwich City, then Notts County. Begun his career with Derry City.

BERNARD MCNAULY (Shrewsbury Town). A fringe member of the squad, who had yet to make an international debut at the beginning of this year. Born in England, he eligible to play for the emerald green by virtue of having an Irish father. Religious convictions forbid him from playing on Sundays, which could create problems if he breaks into the team and Ireland reaches the second stage of the finals.

PAUL RAMSEY (Leicester City). Ultra-competitive, mid-fielder-cum-defender who joined Leicester from Derry Athletic in 1980 and first donned an Irish jersey four years later.

• Northern Ireland: Jennings, C. Nicholl, McClelland, Donaghy, McCreery, Hamilton, Whiteside, Armstrong, J. Nicholl, McIlroy, M. O'Neill.

GERRY ARMSTRONG (West Bromwich Albion). Striker with good all-round skills who equalled Joe Bambrick's long-standing Irish international goalscoring record of 12 when netting against Finland in November, 1984. One of the few who perform far better for their country than club, he was voted Britain's best performer at the last World Cup finals.

COLIN CLARKE (Bournemouth). Plucked from English League Division Three for Ireland's qualifying round squad, he is a lively striker. Despite being only 23, has played for four other clubs — Grimsby, Ipswich Town (no first team appearance), Peterborough United and Tranmere Rovers.

NIGEL WORTHINGTON (Sheffield Wednesday). Moved across the Irish Sea to Notts County in a £140,000 transfer during 1981, shortly after being named Ireland's Young Player of the Year, and a £100,000 brought him to Sheffield Wednesday in 1984.

NOEL BROTHERSTON (Blackburn Rovers). A prematurely balding, 29-year-old whose pace and ball control make him a potential match-winner, either as winger or midfield. Brilliant throughout Northern Ireland's 1980 British Championship triumph, he toured Australia in the same year. After making just one league appearance for his original club, Tottenham Hotspur, he joined Blackburn in

IAN STEWART (Newcastle United). An extrovert character who has deserved his best performances for Northern Ireland, he joined Newcastle 1977 and has subsequently become one of the most popular individuals in the history of that famous club.

DAVID MCREEERY (Newcastle United). A human dynamo of a midfielder who started his senior international career 10 years ago and gained his 50th senior cap in the crucial game at Bucharest. Previously with Manchester United, Queen's Park Rangers and Tulsa Roughnecks (USA), he has also represented Northern Ireland at schoolboys, youth and under 21 levels.

SAMMY McILROY (Manchester City). Another squad veteran (31 years of age with over 80 caps — a record for an Irish outfield player). Spent 10 years at Manchester United, before moving to Stoke City in 1981, but is now back in Manchester — at City.

JIMMY QUINN (Blackburn Rovers). Assured a special place in Irish World Cup history as a result of his crucial goal at Bucharest, yet only three years ago was playing in the semi-professional Cheshire League. After leaving Cheshire, he spent a season with Swindon Town, before a £65,000 transfer took the enthusiastic striker to Blackburn Rovers, and a long stint on the substitutes' bench before eventually winning a place in the English Second Division club's starting line up.

BILLY BINGHAM (Coach). A craftsman of a winger with Glentoran, Sunderland, Luton Town, Everton, Port Vale and Northern Ireland (56 caps — including 5 won during 1982 World Cup finals). As a coach, he served Southport, Plymouth Argyle, Greece, Northern Ireland (1967-1971), Everton and Mansfield Town, before starting a second stint in charge of the Irish national team in 1980.

from Queen's Park Rangers in a $300,000 transfer.

NORMAN WHITESIDE (Manchester United). Made a sensational impact in 1982, after travelling to Spain as an uncapped 17-year-old. Both the youngest player to appear in the World Cup finals and youngest to score in the FA Cup final, he was converted from striker to midfielder last season.

STEVE PENNEY (Brighton). Very promising young winger who has made rapid strides since Brighton paid Ballymena United $60,000 for him late in 1982.

BILLY HAMILTON (Oxford United). Missed most of the 1985-86 English League campaign with a knee injury, but his proven record at international level should assure him of a place in the squad if fitness is regained. A robust, six-foot striker who served Linfield, Queen's Park Rangers and Burnley before moving to Oxford in a £160,000 transfer immediately before United's 1984-85 Second Division championship-winning campaign.

BILLY BINGHAM (Coach). A craftsman of a winger with Glentoran, Sunderland, Luton Town, Everton, Port Vale and Northern Ireland (56 caps — including 5 won during 1982 World Cup finals). As a coach, he served Southport, Plymouth Argyle, Greece, Northern Ireland (1967-1971), Everton and Mansfield Town, before starting a second stint in charge of the Irish national team in 1980.

WHAT A YAWN!

SYDNEY OLYMPIC 1 (Phillips 58th)
MELITA EAGLES 0, play-off for third place at St George Stadium. Referee: Richard Lorenc 9. Cautions: Lambropoulos, Bourke.

SYDNEY OLYMPIC: London 7 — Phillips 7, Dakos 7, Soder 7, Lambropoulos 6 (Roper 46th — 5), Bourke 5, Raskopoulos 6, Soper (60th Estavillo) — Brant 5, Stevenson 5, Kalantzis 6.

MELITA EAGLES: Pupovac 7 — McCoy 7, McCausland 7, Wilson 8, Williams 7 — Stone 6 (Hassan 67th), Sestak 6, Vojcik 6 — Dalton 5, Foxman 5, Meerbah 6, Callahan 6, Birk 6.

"We will be known as Santa Eagles after this game," quipped Kenny Wilson, Melita's centre back, after his team had gone down to the Sydney Olympic.

Dragon Pupovac, Melita's young goalkeeper, threw a few passes to a defender who in turn found Birrol Sertbas some 27 metres from Melita's goal line. Gary Phillips pinched the ball and lobbed it over the stranded Pupovac. That was the goal which separated the two sides at the end of the most boring match so far this year.

Treated by both teams as a mere workout, it was played at a pedestrian pace, with Melita showing far more initiative.

During the first 45 minutes, yawns all over the ground failed to make an impression on the 22 players. Olympic lacked zip and struggled against Melita's youthful side. Bourke, Raskopoulos and Soper did not make a formidable midfield combination and I am sure that Manfred Schaefer has learned from this experiment.

Vicente Estavillo came on the park after an injury to Marshall Soper but failed to stamp his authority on the already disjointed Olympic machine.

At the other end, Melita enjoyed a fair amount of possession and should have netted at least three times. With the scoreline 1-0 to Olympic, Melita created opportunities which should not have been missed.

Olympic, apart from that gift goal, created next to nothing, with the best chance going to Stuart Stevenson with 10 minutes remaining but his volley missed by 20 metres!

Despite losing, Melita retained its pride. Farrugia, Griffiths, Laing and Farnsworth sat on the sideline with injuries and one might suggest that those four would have made an awful amount of difference.

An enterprising display by Marijan Kovacic and superb finishing by Zeljko Jurin highlighted the Ampol Cup final, won by the slenderest of margins by Croatia.

For Jurin to win by a lot more goals, Croatia never came to grips with the windy conditions, nor its stubborn opponents from Queanbeyan.

Zarko Odzakov, who had been tipped to mastermind Croatia's success in the final, had an off day and was replaced by John Kero midway through the second half.

Wally Savor and Shane Clinch never got out of first gear, while Graham Arnold and Emel Dragicevic took a "night off".

However, it's stubborn and well-organised defence and some enterprising runs by Jurin more than made up for a general shortage of creativity. The star or Croatia was Marijan Kovacic.

The man who for so long promised so much, but always came an inch short of the big time, was ahead of more fancied players like Giampaolo, Odzakov and Roko Hrvoje. Defence, midfield and attack almost reached a stalemate, but did not make a single mistake for the entire 90 minutes.

Drag Rezo at full back for Croatia put a stop to Giampaolo's ambition, while Rozic deserves praise for his great anticipation.

However, with all due respect to his fine display, it was difficult to understand the second half tactics of Croatia. With only a one-goal advantage, Croatia sat back and allowed Inter Monaro to dominate play during the second period.

With a more enterprising attitude, I feel Inter Monaro could have done better. But with a game which provided Inter with one step forward and two steps back, it was obvious that the visitors from Queanbeyan were not going to score.

So much good work was done by Attilo Carbone and Ricky Budini, Alas, Steve Winn (once again), Victor Trajanovski and Ian Wotherspoon were out of touch and that is just too much of a start for a team like Croatia.

Any determination to sit back and play counter-attacking football almost paid off a few times for Croatia's shrewd coach, and in each of the counter-attacking raids, Croatia relied on the long-legged, fast-running Zeljko Jurin.

He provided Shane Clinch with a chance in the 68th but Clinch headed over the bar. He was electrifying in the 81st, running for almost 40 metres and combatting some four to five players but his pass, which found Dragicevic, was in vain — the final shot going wide.

Jurin missed a fine opportunity in the 72nd after four of Croatia's players had been involved in a great move. Jurin hit his shot high and handsome, metres over the bar.

A header by Dragicevic in the 70th was saved by Hoszowski while Kero shot wide from a good position close to the end.

For Inter Monaro a shot by Wotherspoon was smothered, while Winn's was in the 51st, but the only chance that came Inter's way was in the 60th minute. For once, Giampaolo turned Rezo and came to the by-line before cutting his cross back for Wotherspoon, metres away from the line, but ever alert Rozic and Kovacic were on the spot to make sure nothing came of it.

And the winning goal: Wally Savor pushed the ball through for Jurin in the 37th. For a moment it looked as if Jurin had gone too wide and could not do much with the angle getting tighter and tighter. But with Hoszowski off his line, Jurin was able to squeeze his shot past the advancing keeper to give Croatia the Cup.

Diamataris powers Port

Fern Tree Gully can be excused for asking: What do you have to do to win a game? Chances are there were many more beggin' and Gully also had 25 unproductive corners and seven shots saved by the woodwork?

Take nothing away from Port though. It fought on to the end and showed determination and teamwork which only will change last year's image of being a chopping block for opposition teams.

Port hit the front when Diamataris received a pin-point cross from Karipidis, chested it down and hammered the ball past a hapless Stenhouse.

In the second half Gully came out with all guns firing. Chances were created and missed but it was just a matter of time before Gully would find the net. But Diamataris put paid to that when he received the ball on the half-way line. With most Gully players in the forward line looking for the equaliser, Diamataris rounded Munro, the only defender in sight, then went past the keeper and slotted home his second.

But Gully kept up its barrage. Port defended strongly and kept Gully out until Steenbergen pulled one back with five minutes to go.

Durakovic to JUST?

Brunswick Juventus utility player Mehmet Durakovic is believed to be seeking a transfer to Footscray JUST. And Vlado Bozinovski is set to join from Hellas after impressing in trial games.

Durakovic was at Schinett Reserve last Sunday, talking to JUST officials during a practice match against Frankston Pines, which JUST won 2-0.

Durakovic, who was a team-mate of Mike Petersen, Andrew Zinni, Peter Tsolakis, Aki Kotzamichalis and Joe Palatsides at Port Melbourne, had a season with Buducnost when his family returned for a while to Yugoslavia.

His father long has been a JUST supporter.

Durakovic, who was included in Juventus' senior team late last year because several players had quit, put in, scored nine goals for Juventus' youth team while playing as centre back.

Because Juventus has added John Yzendoorn and Jamie Paton to its squad, Durakovic is worried that he will lose his place in the team.

He is an extremely talented player, particularly at right back, although he also can play as stopper or in midfield.

Paul Simic, continuing his impressive comeback, and Ernie Tapai, scored JUST's goals against Frankston Pines, whose goalkeeper Dennis Boland (ex-JUST) had much to do with keeping the score down.

Star striker Alan Stoen was suspended and had to be replaced by Bill Lazopoulos in the 21st minute, but he immediately came on and he'll be OK for the National Cup match against George Cross on March 23.

JUST's line-up: Nikolic — Karic, Vukcevic, Belic, Petrovski — Tapai, Bozinovski, Lujic — Stosic (Lazopoulos 21st), Simic (Nedekowski 76th), Latif.

Best players: Karic, Bozinovski, Latif, Belic.

More goals for Brown

Doug Brown continues to show his goalscoring form of old, notching two in SM-Hellas's 3-0 victory over Western Suburbs in practice match at Ralph Street, Sunshine, last Sunday.

Charlie Egan scored the other goal, and Alan Davidson did well in his first game since rejoining Hellas from Nottingham Forest.

Best players were Egan, Brown, Davidson, and Arthur Xanthopoulos.

Hellas's other results this year have been:

v West Adelaide Hellas 3-2 (friendly), goals: Egan 2, Brown.

v Melbourne Croatia 1-2, goal McDowell.

v Western Suburbs 0-1.

v Green Gully 1-1, McDowell.

v Juventus 0-0.

v Morell Falcons 0-2.

v Olympia (Tas) 3-0, Brown 2, McDowell.

Greener to Waverley

Waverley City has signed former Springvale City player-coach Ian Greener, who previously was a striker with Wilhelmina.

Greener is the first recruit signed by new Waverley coach Wally Stevenson who still is on the lookout for players.

He can be contacted after hours on (03) 561 4621.

Little guy with a big heart

He is a product of Port Melbourne, a club renowned for breeding champions. His former team-mates include Andrew Zinni, Mehmet Durakovic, Joe Palatsides and Soccerco Mike Petersen, who are now at Juventus, and Croatia's Aki Kotzamichalis who, at 6ft 5 ins, is the tallest player in Victorian soccer!

But the name Tsolakis is more synonymous with South Melbourne Hellas than with Port Melbourne or Heidelberg. Peter's father, Manny, was the right winger of the Hellas team that won its first championship, in 1962. John Margaritis, now Hellas's coach, was among Manny's team-mates.

"Dad's been there, he's done that," says Peter. "I've learned a lot from him. Every day, we'd be out at the park, playing together. After each game, he'd tell me what I'd done wrong, and correct me."

But the young lad has paid his dues when Heidelberg meets Hellas. "Dad's a Heidelberg man through and through now," says Peter. "And we have former Hellas players, George Christopoulos and Theo Semelidis who think that much harder every time we play in the big Greek derby."

Opposing full backs try to intimidate Tsolakis, but tough talk doesn't put him off, and most of the free kicks go his way. "Peter Lewis of Juventus told me during the NSL finals last year that he'd break my leg. I said: 'OK, go for it', and walked away. During the game, you're enemies, but afterwards Peter was the first to shake my hand. He's a good guy. But he's also been my toughest opponent, along with Mark Brown of Croydon."

Tsolakis, who is doing an accountancy course at Prahran College after being unemployed in 1985, also praised those who vied with him in the Buffalo Gold Cup best player voting.

"Sean Lane did really well, Steve Gojevic of Croatia is one, and Ernie Tapai of Footscray also had a top series. He's helped me a lot with passes down the left wing," Tsolakis says.

After losing star defender Charlie Yankos and strikers Stuart Stevenson and Steve Winn, Heidelberg was not expected to reach the final.

But it will be a big year for Heidelberg, according to Tsolakis. "We've introduced Alan Hunter, Andy Higgins and Chris Ketsakidis as new players in the team, and Tzintzis is back after a year's absence, so we once we all get used to playing together, we'll be a definite contender for the NSL finals," Tsolakis said.

Revenge for Croatia but controversy over winning goal

By CRAIG

Man of the match:
JEFF OLVER
(Heidelberg)

MELBOURNE CROATIA 2 (Campbell 31st, Bonacic 68th)
HEIDELBERG ALEXANDER 1 (Hunter penalty 43rd). Buffalo Gold Cup final at Olympic Park, Saturday night. Crowd: about 10,000. Cautions: Campbell, Gojevic, Deankovic, Mcintosh (MC). Ketsakidis, Olver (Heid). Referee: Chris Bambridge.

MELBOURNE CROATIA: Runje 8 — Deankovic 8, Mcintosh 7, Curcio 7, Hannah 8 — Biskic 8, Campbell 7, Gojevic 7 (Redmond 80th) Bonacic 6 — Ward 6, Todoric 6 (Markovic 84th). Coach: Miron Bleiberg.

HEIDELBERG ALEXANDER: Olver 9 — McKie 8, Hunter 7, Christopoulos 7 (in) Valentine 41st, 5) Marley 8 — Semelidis 7, Higgins 6, Ketsakidis 5 (Delganioglou 77th) — Metaxas 6, Tzintzis 7 (Angle 87th), Todoric 7. Coach: Brian Garvey.

Croatia avenged its 5-1 drubbing by Heidelberg in last year's Buffalo Gold Cup final but this match was marred by two goals that should not have been awarded.

Croatia's Tony Curcio clearly was pushed in the back by Heidelberg's Paul Tzintzis just before Curcio tripped Tzintzis and Heidelberg was awarded a penalty from which it levelled the scores in the 43rd minute.

The winning goal from Croatia came in the 68th minute and before Luke Bonacic nabbed it, big Davie McIntosh impeded Heidelberg goalie Jeff Olver when they challenged for a high ball.

Back to the Curcio-Tzintzis incident. Heidelberg was under pressure and was belting the ball clear. One such clearance, a mighty one at that, by Andy Higgins, sent the ball sailing downfield. Curcio was in control of the situation but Tzintzis' own possession by elbowing Curcio in the back as Curcio then sprinted forward and tripped Tzintzis. Referee Chris Bambridge had been understandably caught well out of position by Higgins' hefty clearance. He obviously didn't see Tzintzis' push but, sprinting at full pace, Bambridge was there in time to view Curcio's trip.

Now on to the winning goal.

Davor Todoric sent over an inswinging corner. Gary Ward headed on, sending the ball into the teeth of the Heidelberg goal. Olver jumped with McIntosh but wasn't even able to effect a clean punch and from my vantage point, appeared to be hindered in his attempt to attack the ball, which fell at the feet of Bonacic who slammed it from point blank range. The goal stood when a free kick to Heidelberg should have been awarded.

Croatia coach Miron Bleiberg dropped Robert Markovic, the second highest scorer in the Buffalo Gold Cup, and used Todoric alongside Ward in the starting line-up. Todoric's penchant for a wide attacking role on the left found him in such position often but Croatia still was able to get midfielders forward to support Ward.

On both occasions, Todoric used his tactical feases as he had done in the semi-final against George Cross. Dragos Deankovic was back on his favorite right side as was John Biskic. Jim Campbell and Steve Gojevic were in central midfield spots with Bonacic on the left. Heidelberg's line-up, predictably, was unchanged with George Christopoulos sweeping up. Alan Hunter stopper, Higgins in a central midfield berth with John Tzintzis, Tzintzis and Peter Tsolakis up front.

Tsolakis was presented with his trophy as the competition's best player then it was down to business and Deankovic hardly let little Tsolakis get a sniff of the ball in the first half.

In the 2nd minute, Josip Biskic's corner to the near post was headed on into the side netting by Ward and in the 5th minute Olver was sliding about at the near post trying to cover a Campbell shot which had been deflected. A minute later Olver was in agony.

He dropped a high ball and Bonacic tried to get a foot to it. Olver recovered but fumbled the ball again. Bonacic tried to get a foot to it again but only succeeded in connecting with Olver.

The Heidelberg goalie lay motionless on the ground as play continued. Bambridge realised that Olver was hurt so he stopped play and on came the trainer. A glance at the Heidelberg team sheet revealed that five reserves were listed. Not one of them was a goalkeeper and that's bad organisation any way you look at it.

Fortunately for Heidelberg, Olver was able to continue.

Heidelberg's first clear strike at goal came in the 10th minute. John Metaxas won the ball on the right of the Croatia area and lobbed it to the far post. Tzintzis had escaped his marker but headed just wide.

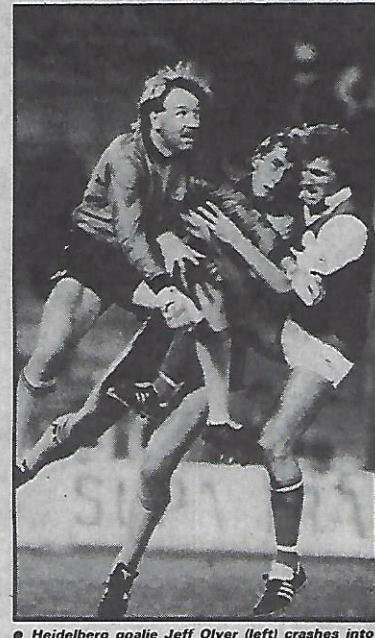

Olver came charging out of his area and slid down to belt the ball clear just before Ward could get a touch to a superb through ball by Gojevic in the 16th minute and two minutes later Heidelberg fans were jumping out of their seats claiming that Tzintzis should have been awarded a penalty.

Tzintzis had earned a superb opportunity on the right and moved into the Croatia area. McIntosh came across to confront him. Tzintzis pushed the ball too far forward then threw himself across McIntosh's outstretched leg but Bambridge wasn't fooled, correctly waving play on.

In the 23rd minute Todoric, what a sweet left foot he has, sent an inswinging corner which was headed over by Ward at the near post.

In the 25th minute, Heidelberg strung together a fine move. Christopoulos played the ball forward to Hunter on the left. Hunter played a long ball to the feet of Tsolakis whose first time lay-off put Metaxas in possession. Metaxas tried a long shot. The ball was deflected to the far post and Mirko Runje was alert enough to race off his line and get to it before Tzintzis.

Olver got down well to hold a firm, low shot from Biskic in the 26th minute. In the 29th minute, Biskic could have set up Todoric on the left but decided to shoot instead, sending the ball well wide. Two minutes later, Croatia struck.

Bonacic took a free kick on the left, just over the halfway line. He knocked it long to Gojevic who headed on to Ward. The leading scorer in the Buffalo Gold Cup did well to create room for a shot. Olver had it covered until it struck a Heidelberg defender and lobbed over his head. Even so, Olver recovered well only to tip the ball on to the bar. Campbell charged in, slid down, and tucked it away.

Bonacic played a superb ball to Gojevic in the 34th minute. Gojevic lost possession but battled well to win the ball back. Then struck a low shot on the turn but Olver was down in a flash and held him safely.

Christopoulos held the ball far too long in the 36th minute. He allowed Ward to close him down, block Christopoulos' attempt long ball and break toward the Heidelberg goal. Fortunately for Christopoulos, Ian Kekie had read the situation well, coming in and thumping the ball out for a throw-in.

Croatia should have gone further ahead in the 39th minute. Deankovic crossed from the right. Bonacic headed firmly but not well directed enough. Nevertheless, the ball fell to Ward at the far post. Olver confronted Ward who cleverly chipped it past the Heidelberg goalie only to see Gojevic heading over with the goal at his mercy.

Christopoulos limped off for treatment in the 40th minute. Semelidis dropped back to sweeper for a couple of minutes but when it became clear that Christopoulos couldn't continue on came Mick Valentine, recently back in favor at Heidelberg. Valentine went to the right side of midfield. Semelidis switched to a central midfield role. Higgins dropped back to stopper and Hunter took over as sweeper.

Two minutes were left before half time when Heidelberg gained its penalty. Hunter took it and converted with ease. The scoreline read 1-1, even though Croatia had created more chances.

Three minutes into the second half, Biskic cut the ball back from the right of the Heidelberg area. Campbell was charging in, shaping for a first time shot but Ward, with his back to goal, controlled the ball before Campbell could get there. Ward spun around and shot but the ball was deflected over.

Olver was well positioned to control a dipping Deankovic volley in the 54th minute. Deankovic and Biskic, whose combinations are well known, had played a neat one-two on the right.

Hunter, who gets caught in possession a bit too much for his liking, was caught in the 56th minute. Todoric slipped the ball to Ward on the left of the Heidelberg area but Ward rushed his shot, sending the ball sailing well over the bar.

Ward had a diagonal run toward the near post, steered a Biskic pass in the 55th minute, three minutes before Croatia's controversial winning goal.

But Croatia should have been awarded a penalty in the 76th minute. Olver had raced out of his area to head the ball clear. It came back just as quickly. Todoric was about to shoot when he was hacked down from behind. Bambridge waved play on, leaving Todoric to limp off for treatment.

Markovic replaced Todoric in the 84th minute. A minute later Markovic had his first touch and should have scored. Bonacic won the ball from Steve Marley, Heidelberg's last defender, positioned just inside Heidelberg's attacking half. Markovic broke from the halfway line but from just outside the Heidelberg area, pushed the ball too far forward, allowing Olver to thump it clear.

In the 87th minute, Heidelberg coach Brian Garvey took off his best forward, Tzintzis; and put on Joe Angele, essentially a central defender. Goodness knows why.

It was too late anyway.

Dockerty Cup preview
By CRAIG MACKENZIE

Steve Short playing sweeper for Knox, Kevin Lloyd lining up for St Albans Dinamo, Ian Loughnane up front for Broadmeadows, Dave Gibson in midfield for Altona Gate, Gerry Bennett wearing the colors of Sandringham City and Peter Vardaxis adding punch to Oakleigh...

That's what's in store when the first main round of the 1986 Ricoh Dockerty Cup kicks off on Saturday.

As was the case last year, Melbourne-based National League clubs won't enter the competition until its later stages but their absence has done little to affect interest in the oldest Cup competition in Australia as clubs clamour for new signings in order to bolster their league championship aspirations or to consolidate their status.

Traditional Greek rivals Caulfield City, newly promoted to State League, and Oakleigh clash in the first match of a double header at Gardiner's Creek Reserve on Saturday.

"I don't think that match was drawn out of a hat," was the response of Oakleigh player-coach Kris Kalafatidis to the draw.

Kalafatidis is in his first season as a senior coach. He's a former Hellas and Northcote defender but it's unlikely that he'll be lining up in his customary sweeper's role against Caulfield.

"I can't force my way into the side just because I'm the coach. The lads are playing too well right now for me to get a game," he said.

Oakleigh has signed Vardaxis from Hellas for $3,000, Jim Paparas from Mordialloc for $3,000 and Con Fakos from Mordialloc on a free.

Kalafatidis is trying to sign another two players as we went to press.

Oakleigh has lost Socrates Nicolaides, who has returned to Hellas, John Gusic, who has joined Croatia, Joe Leonardi, who has been training with Springvale City and Giovanni Batticchio who has retired.

Nevertheless, Steve Irvine has re-signed and alongside Paparas will give Oakleigh plenty of bite up front which means that we're in for a great game, for Caulfield will have a year's leading coach, Danny Zemankic, former Hellas winger Pepe Abram and former Northcote winger Jim Sahinidis trying to find a way through Oakleigh's defence.

I lean slightly towards Caulfield in what could be a thriller.

Western Suburbs' Scottish import Dennis MacLeod will lineup against Yarraville in the second game at Gardiner's Creek Reserve on Saturday.

Yarraville has signed former captain and suburbs striker Billy Bouzas, goal-keeper Nick Apostolidis from Suburbs, Fred Demetrios from Bulleen and his brother Jimmy Bouzas may not line up against Suburbs because he's still working on his fitness, but Fred Demetrios will be in defence, Jimmy Demetrios in midfield and Apostolidis in goal. Coach Con Karapanagiotidis can look forward to a big year judging by the way his committee is pulling out all stops in a determined bid to sign a goal-keeper from Greek First Division club Iraklis. Yarraville officials won't release his name until

So Melbourne should be at full strength for its clash with Altona Gate. The duck shooting season must be drawing to a close and the fish must be growing increasingly evasive judging by Vinko Innen's appearance on the training track last week. Melbourne still hadn't completed Kev in Swincoe's transfer from Juventus as we went to press and was trying to sign forward Martin Catterton from Sunbury.

Former JUST and Hellas winger Mendo Ristovski has re-signed with Altona Gate and left back Jim Dervovski, who went overseas in the second half of last season, is back and in fine form. Striker Jim Bikic looks to have fully recovered from knee reconstruction surgery, judged by the two goals he scored against Essendon Tropicans in a recent cup match.

Altona Gate Vardar also is talking to a 28 year old sweeper from Pelister in Yugoslavia. He's a former Vardar player but Altona

• Kevin Lloyd — set to join St. Albans Dinamo.

• Peter Vardaxis — from Hellas to Oakleigh.

• Steve Short — now with Knox City

immigration officials approve his visa.

Yarraville has lost Con Giatos to Hellas and Laz Nicolaides is transfer listed at $300.

Suburbs and Yarraville are ball-playing outfits so skill will be the order of the day. Suburbs have the classier players though and Bobby McGuinness, David Smallman, George Beattie and MacLeod should ensure a Suburbs victory.

Suburbs coach Jimmy Condile may have to reorganise his back four as central defender Steve Dimovski may join Footscray JUST. Then again, there's a whisper going around that Suburbs could sign Gary Cutler from Northcote. It's so Cuthbert would sit straight into Dimovski's spot alongside dependable Andy Esposito.

Despite its cash-flow problems (funny, isn't it, that when I haven't got money I'm broke, but when clubs haven't got money they're got a cash flow problem) Melbourne Hungaria should defeat Altona Gate in the first match of a double header at Smith Reserve.

Melbourne officials and players have met twice in the past fortnight to thrash out a cut in match fees. The first proposition put to the players was $60 a win, $40 a draw and $30 a loss. Let's just say that the proposition didn't elicit a favorable response. A second proposition put to the players last week was more favorably received. It involves bonuses at the end of the season.

So Melbourne should be at full strength for its clash with Altona Gate. The duck shooting season must be drawing to a close and the fish must be growing increasingly evasive judging by Vinko Innen's appearance on the training track last week. Melbourne still hadn't completed Kev in Swincoe's transfer from Juventus as we went to press and was trying to sign forward Martin Catterton from Sunbury.

Former JUST and Hellas winger Mendo Ristovski has re-signed with Altona Gate and left back Jim Dervovski, who went overseas in the second half of last season, is back and in fine form. Striker Jim Bikic looks to have fully recovered from knee reconstruction surgery, judged by the two goals he scored against Essendon Tropicans in a recent cup match.

Melbourne's attack again will be led by Danny Ward, with Tony Heery driving opposing defenders to distraction out wide. Player-coach Paddy Bannon and stopper Tibor Drinovszky should keep things tight at the back.

Fawkner clashes with Doncaster Rovers in the second match at Smith Reserve and keep your eye out for 16-year-old Fawkner right back Peter Bordignon.

"This kid's a star of the future if ever there was one," said Fawkner coach Peter Boyle.

Former Juventus and Hellas' goal-keeper Gary Clayton has been training with Doncaster Rovers and is set to secure his transfer from Springvale City and former Croydon midfielder Duncan Smith, who quit as player-coach of Knox two weeks ago, also could join Rovers.

Former George Cross great Norm Maitland is Doncaster's player-coach. In Rob Forsyth and Andy Casson, Maitland can field the most fearsome striking duo in Victorian soccer. Casson is a giant and Forsyth is solid and aggressive. They'll put Fawkner's defence under tremendous pressure.

The midfielders also is important for Ray Tolmie and Keith Valentine. Doncaster has two experienced and talented performers. Fawkner playmaker Colin Quigley may not have as much room to work as he'd like. Nevertheless, Fawkner might pack too strong a punch up front in the form of Joe Palinkas and Bruno Cozzella.

Doveton has lost 10 of last year's first team, so coach Bill Millen won't be full of confidence going into Saturday's clash with Sunbury in the first match of a double header at Churchill Reserve.

The Doves have lost Paul Priestley, Jimmy Spinks and Peter Killey to Moorabbin, Les Long and Dave Nelson to Knox; Steve Gadsby to Sandringham City, Sammy Wright to Keysborough; David Wainwright to North Dandenong and Stuart Robbins and Terry Masters to Boronia.

The newcomers to the first team squad are: goalkeeper

• Alun Evans
(Sandringham)

He's got four attacking players in Graham French, Andy Humble, Alex Livingstone and Dave Brogan with Matt McDonald, Jim MacLean, and Steve Beech vying for midfield berths.

French and Dandenong City's new sweeper Steve Gadsby are old mates from their Hakoah days but big French has been known to put himself about so Gadsby won't be made exactly welcome.

Sandringham City's other new signings are David Spencer, Mark Kresan, Mark Phillips and Peter Wild from the now defunct Kew Park Rangers, John Skomrl from Springvale United and the club was trying to sign Davie Luca from Springvale City in time for this clash. Regular goalkeeper Chris Sparrow is recovering from a back injury so Dandenong player-coach Jimmy Daperis should win.

Charlie Kelly is Knox's caretaker coach and his immediate task will be to guide the side through Saturday's clash with Clarinda and into the next round of the 1986 Ricoh Dockerty Cup. That's the first match of a double header at Croydon Park.

Although Knox is likely to lose Raphael Underwood, Michael Bissinger and Martin Wilde, it has signed the experienced Steve Short, who played with Berwick last season on loan from Green Gully, forward Dave Nelson from Doveton and Clive Holmes from Clarinda, defender Tom Fitzpatrick from Springvale City and was trying to sign stopper Fred Murray from Ringwood Wilhelmina as we went to press.

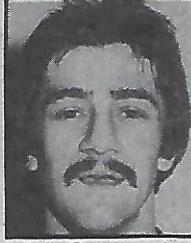

Clarinda's main signings this season have been the Mitsou brothers, Theo and Jimmy, both from Hellas. The likely Clarinda line-up is: Michael Ioakimidis — Billy Fergalidis, Peter Apostolopoulos, captain John Godeas, Peter Constantinos — Aki Charalambous, Peter Petrakos, Bill Gatzonis, Jim Myringis, Mike Charalambous, Theo Mitsou, others in contention are Con Nicos and Jimmy Mitsou.

Croydon, 1985 State League champion, should be too strong for Dandenong City in the second match at Croydon Park.

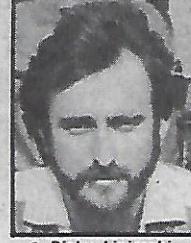

Croydon coach Peter Oliver has only one major problem, who does he drop?

● From Page 10

Helias star Alan Evans and the nippy Alex Fenton up front, Sandringham will stretch Broadmeadows.

Broadmeadows coach Bill McArthur hoped to complete the signing of striker Ian Loughnane from Fawkner in time for this match. There's $2,500 on Loughnane's head and if signed in, McArthur will partner David Griffith and Dave Perkins in midfield. Broadmeadows does hope rest with Stewart Blair and George Watson. They'll be pitted against Brian Greenwood and Tony Dillon of Sandringham. Broadmeadows should win but I would mind betting that this one goes right down to the wire.

Box Hill will be without Peter Verechia, Andy Hughes and Pedro Ramos when it clashes with Northcote in the second match at Wembley Park. It still should win though as Northcote isn't firing on all cylinders and a splash out on new players and lacks Box Hill's depth. Verechia was expected to join Morwell Falcons as we went to press while Hughes and Ramos were transfer listed last week after a breakdown in negotiations over new contracts.

• Danny Zemunick (Caulfield)

Despite the demise of last year's first team squad, Polonia should defeat North Dandenong in the first match of a double header at Monterey Reserve.

Greg Czapnik, who doesn't look suited to the role, has been tried out as sweeper in recent games but North Dandenong isn't strong up front so Polonia fans can rest easy. A plus for Polonia should be the return from injury of goalkeeper Leszek Dzielakowski and striker Janusz Przybyla, the latter likely to partner Greg Wierszawski in Polonia's attack.

North Dandenong's new signings are Steve Lawson (from Frankston Pines for $1,300), former JUST defender Jim Milne (from Morialton on a free), David Wainwright (from Doveton) and Mitchell Pilbeam (from Knox). The losses have been Steve McCombe (to Nunawading City) and Ian Mackie and Alastair Taylor (both to Dingley).

Lawson is likely to line up as sweeper with Milne stopper. Neil Collier probably will be right back and Wainwright left back. In midfield, North Dandenong coach Arthur McMillan may use John Byrne, Tommy Fox and Pilbeam with Jason Symonds, Mark Congdon and John McDonald up front. If McMillan decides to use four in midfield then Gary Buick could come into the starting line-up with one of the forwards dropping out.

Frankston Pines will be too strong for Werribee in the second match at Monterey Reserve.

In Stan Webster, Ally Dick, Mick McCorrian and Goran Runje and Paul Hennessy Pines have an abundance of attacking flair, too much for Werribee to stifle.

Werribee's only new signings this year are Seb Magano from Sunbury and goalkeeper Angelo Melioli from Moreland. The club has high hopes for 20-year-old Greg Loughnane and one of Werribee's stars, 20-year-old Ian Calderwood, is recovering from knee problems. Former Altona City and Sunshine player Peter Scartell will be in Werribee's defence with Gus Paolo, runner-up in the First Division's best and fairest voting last year, up front.

Wilhelmina with recruit Stuart Thomson in its line-up, should beat Springvale United in the first match of a double header at Ross Reserve. But a word of warning to Wilhelmina. Don't take Springvale United lightly, for it is a very skilful if sometimes inconsistent outfit. It certainly can't be when it puts its mind to it.

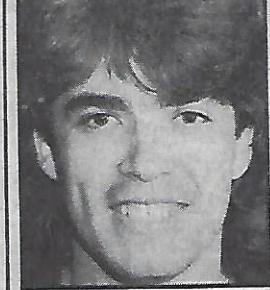

Wilhelmina player-coach Kees Storm and Thomson will line up in midfield and Wilhelmina was trying to sign two defenders as we went to press.

Ermias Wondimu, Johnny Nyholm and Kenny Stewart will be in Wilhelmina's attack and should do enough to save the State League side from embarrassment.

Springvale City still was trying to sort out the Greg House affair in order to use the gifted striker against Mooroolbark in the second match at Ross Reserve.

The web of intrigue involving Springvale City, Melbourne Croatia and Knox can be unravelled, thereby enabling House to play and Springvale's other addition to its attack, Russell Athertson, arrives from England in time then the Springvale line-up could look something like this: Bill Whiteside — Martin Vogel, Keith Adams, Michael Bissinger, Robin Sette — Ged Bannon, Gordon Bentley, Jim Nelson — Joe D'Amico, House, Athertson.

Springvale City still was

Pedro Ramos seeks move

Pedro Ramos, 24, one of the finest midfielders in the Victorian State League, has been transfer-listed at his own request by Box Hill for $5000.

Born in Chile, he joined Box Hill eight years ago as an under 16 player. He has played for the Victorian youth team and was a member of the Victorian schoolboys side that beat NSW in the national schoolboys final in Brisbane a few years ago.

His team-mates at Box Hill have included Scott Patterson and Mike Valentine, who went on to play NSW soccer for Heidelberg-Alexander, and Ian Roodhouse and Steve Smith, who are now with Preston Makedonia.

A skilful, two-footed player who averages seven or eight goals a year from midfield, Ramos can be obtained at home on (03) 874 6936.

Tuffield to the NSL?

Top scorer dumped!

Brendan Lalic, 28, top scorer of Thomastown for the past two seasons, has been transfer-listed for only $2500.

The decision by new coach George McMillan not to include Lalic in his 18-man squad is a puzzling one, as Lalic scored 10 goals last year and 16 goals in 1984.

He was also joint top scorer of Polonia, with 14 goals in one of his six seasons there. He also won Polonia's best and fairest award.

Lalic can be contacted at home on (03) 380 4543.

• Bruno Cazzella (Fawkner)

But Mooroolbark won't capitulate easily. It has gone on a buying spree this year, gaining Joe front from Royal Richmond, Paul Priestley, Jimmy Spinks and Peter Kirby from Doveton, former Crotalaria and Wilhelmina player Kevin Adams from Swan Hill, Houston from Prahran Celtic, Second Division club Bulleen could toss First Division rival Albion Turk Gucci out of the 1986 Ricoh Dockerty Cup when they clash in the first match of a double header at

Rigby to Gully

Ferntree Gully has again recruited well, with class players Dave Rigby, Harry McKinley and Terry Masters added to the club's existing successful squad.

Ferntree Gully's hard-working committee believe this year will again be successful, and would welcome the support and patronage of local soccer fans at Rushdale Street, on Saturday, March 22, for what promises to be an entertaining match with Rosanna.

Heidelberg reunion

Life members and all former players of Victorian League Fourth Division club Heidelberg (formerly Heidelberg-Bundoora) are invited to a gala day at the club's headquarters on the corner of Liberty Parade and Banksia Streets, Heidelberg, on Sunday.

Taubmann paints will sponsor the festivities and the club will unveil a plaque in members' names. Heidelberg's origins date back to the 1920s but the club's first life member was named in 1945. Heidelberg now has 40 life members.

Former Wilhelmina and Croatia great Ollie Norris is Heidelberg's new coach. Club president "Shocker" Myles is adamant that players won't be paid. This switch to an amateur outlook has been forced on the club due to a debt of $6,000.

Heidelberg recently beat Greensborough in the final of the Darkon Cup and Myles and Norris are confident the team will consolidate its Fourth Division status before climbing back up the leagues.

POLONIA'S SIDE OF THE STORY

Polonia president Richard Makarucha has hit out at my story in last week's "Soccer Action" concerning player problems at the Victorian State League club, claiming that Polonia's situation was misrepresented.

I said that Rick Liplarski, Dave Gibson, Janusz Przybyla, Leszek Dzielakowski, John Little, Claude Avian, Darko Kolaric and Sam Deluca were in contractual dispute with Polonia.

"Rick Liplarski has never had contractual problems with Polonia. He's been at the club for 10 years and feels that he need a change. That's why he's on the transfer list," said Makarucha.

"We also haven't had contract problems with Dave Gibson who got involved in club politics because he didn't like us sacking Eddie Reid as coach. Janusz Przybyla and Leszek Dzielakowski are injured, not in dispute. Claude Avian and John Little are in a 50/50 situation. They're partly in dispute over contract. Darko Kolaric was passed off with the coaching last year and didn't like him on the bench in a couple of friendlies this year."

I also said last week that Peter and Greg Czapnik, Sava Sagala, Mirek Weich and John Vathis were transfer listed last last year. Sagala had injury problems last year while Kathis transferred to Melbourne.

"They were never transfer listed," said Makarucha.

"Peter the Czapnik was in dispute with the club because he didn't like the coach, the same goes for Mirek Weich, while Eddie Reid was in dispute with the coach that he wouldn't make it and Greg had a chronic back problem too."

After refusing to name what I believed was an impeccable source for last week's story, Makarucha told me: "The reporting should be more accurate and should come from people with the authority to comment on club matters. If your source was a Polonia committee then he'd be sacked immediately."

"I reserve the right to vet everything that goes into the press concerning Polonia."

And "Soccer Action" reserves the right to contact whom it pleases and ask any question it pleases without discussing the matter with the president of Polonia or any club official. We still believe in freedom of speech, within the bounds of laws regarding libel and defamation, of course.

THE INDOOR BOOM!

After Round Three of Victoria's premier indoor soccer league, the Latrobe Valley League, the Wallabies have set a very high standard for the other teams to achieve.

The international experience of Browne and Brabbin has been passed on to their team mates and certainly shows out in the way they dispose of the opposition.

Peter Coad continues to score goals, putting away five of the Wallabies goals in an 8-5 win over promising newcomers Trak Records.

It was great to see both Anthony and Mark Cassar back playing for Trak Records, scoring two goals each.

Another new team this season, the Spartans, secured a very impressive 4-2 win over MIKI Motos. David Wilson, in his first game in two years, top scored with two lightning quick goals and provided a steady influence in the Spartans' win.

The Women's League continues to improve mainly due to the many male coaches who have shown a real interest in assisting the ladies to improve their ball skills.

Coach David Wilson said: "It was a pleasure to coach these ladies as they show a real keenness to improve."

The Socceros coached by the demanding David Lloyd, have been moulded into an almost unbeatable force with a recent 5-0 win over newcomers Turfites. Goal scorers in this game were Melinda Davey (2),

Brabbin's the boss

At a recent meeting of players and directors of the Latrobe Valley Indoor Soccer League, Paul Brabbin was unanimously appointed as playing coach of the Latrobe Valley's first State League team.

Paul has been playing indoor soccer for three years and has represented Australia at the World Championship held in Spain in October 1985. Victoria at both the 1985 and 1986 National Championships, and the Latrobe Valley at the 1985 and 1986 National Club Championships.

Paul recently had success in coaching the Valley team to its second successive state championship in November and he is looking forward to continuing his first-up effort and proving to other state centres that the Valley Tigers are Victoria's premier team.

The crowd knew before the game started that this was going to be a tough encounter as both teams had their sights set on reaching the finals. Split wanted to make up for last year's semi-final loss to Euronations.

The game was tense and started off at a fast pace with both teams creating numerous scoring opportunities but the final shots didn't find the net.

It was not until the 12th minute of the first half that last year's league Best and Fairest winner, Terry Frangakis, rocketed a right foot drive past Jarakisis in goal for Split.

In the 10th minute of the second half, man-of-the-match Fabio Gaucl scored the Euronations' second goal to clinch the game.

The game was tense and started off at a fast pace with both teams creating numerous scoring opportunities but the final shots didn't find the net to make it 6-0. Varga scored to make it 7-0 and in the 13th minute the Greeks scored one of their two goals.

In the second half, it was soon 9-1 when first Del Porto and then Severino scored again, then Sorani made it 10-1. The score changed to 10-2 when the Greeks managed another shot, but John Sorani answered quickly, hammering in two blistering shots to make it 12-2.

It is clear that it will take a very good team indeed to beat this goalscoring machine and it looks as if the Triestina boys will be taking home the trophy from Sunshine.

It's Beograd, Juventus in the final

Beograd 1

Scorer: Greaves 82nd

It's Beograd v Adelaide Juventus in the SA Ampol Cup final at the Hindmarsh Stadium tonight (Wednesday, March 12) after a king-size upset and a near upset in the semi-finals.

Beograd defied the odds to eliminate highly fancied West Adelaide Hellas in an extra-time thriller, while Juventus nosed home against Azzurri with a late goal from Adrian Santrac.

There was a tinge of disbelief surrounding Beograd's success over Hellas.

Unquestionably, Hellas had been the star turn of the minor round as it banged in 10 goals and allowed only one in its three games.

And as it picked up its six qualifying points Hellas entertained with football of genuine quality.

Beograd, by contrast, stumbled into the major round with two wins (one an uncertain 1-0 effort over Elizabeth City) and a 0-2 loss to Juventus.

with ALLAN CRISP

But Beograd tossed aside the form book to achieve its shock result and destroy the promoter's dream of a Hellas-Juventus final.

Beograd boss Johnny Nyskohus was the first to admit that his team had enjoyed more than its fair share of good fortune during the initial 80 minutes and the eventual 10 minutes each-way of extra-time.

"Yes, we were lucky, but we were competitive and we lasted out the game well," Nyskohus said.

Stamina was an important ingredient as the game was played in oppressively hot conditions.

The final will put brother against brother as Beograd coach Johnny Nyskohus attempts to stop his elder brother Bugsy leading Juventus to its second successive Ampol Cup win.

There was a fair share of brotherly rivalry in the second semi-final, with David Alberton of Juventus opposed to his brother Robbie Alberton of Azzurri and Azzurri goalkeeper David Miller on the opposite side to his striker brother Colin Miller.

The heroes of the first semi-final were Beograd goalkeeper Frank Pasquini, Rothmans Medal winner Paul Shillabeer of Beograd and match-winning goalscorer Sean Greaves, whose deflected shot beat Hellas goalkeeper Gary Sproul.

Hellas was best served by Allan Scott, who created countless chances with his left flank crosses and Charlie Yankos in his first full game for his new club.

Santrac threw Juventus a Cup lifeline with his late goal, while our defenders Neville Flounders and Bugsy Nyskohus were as reliable as ever.

The villains of the night were Hellas midfielder John Panagis, whose sent-off thwarted any hope Hellas had of notching an equaliser and Azzurri midfielder Ossie Michelon, who got his marching orders in the second semi-final against Juventus.

BLASTS FROM THE PAST

• RALPH COATES, England international of Tottenham Hotspur, revs up his team in one of 10 guest games for St. George Budapest in 1978. Ray Clemence, the England and Liverpool goalkeeper, played two guest games for the Saints that year.

• CHARLIE GEORGE, superstar of Arsenal and Derby County, tangles with Arthur Xanthopoulos of South Melbourne Hellas while guesting for St. George Budapest at Middle Park in 1977. Malcolm Macdonald played for Hellas in that match, which St. George won 3-2 in front of 14,000 people. Scorers were Rudi Gavri, Mark Jankovics and Charlie George for St. George, and Macdonald scored both goals for Hellas. Best players were Macdonald, Billy Rogers, Mike Pye and Xanthopoulos for Hellas, and Rob O'Shea, Gavri, Phil O'Connor and Charlie George for St. George. Pictured in the background is Hellas full back Margaritis Hagegmanouil.

• TONY TURNER, the man who cost South Melbourne Hellas three competition points in 1978 because he had not been cleared properly from England, heads the ball clear in a match against Sydney Hakoah at Wentworth Park. Hellas finished last that season, but avoided relegation. Also pictured, from left: John Stevenson (Hak), Bertie Lutton (Hellas), Gerry Gomez (Hak) and Sammy Wright

Deankovic or Davidson: who's best?

Drago Deankovic of Melbourne Croatia was dumped in the reserves for 18 months after following his mates, Josip Biskic and Jozo Antolovic to Australia. Today, Deankovic rivals Alan Davidson as the finest right back in the country.

Deankovic is flattered by the comparison, but he laughs it off.

"Davidson is better," he says. "I really like the way he plays for Australia."

I like the whole Australian team, and the way it plays under Frank Arko, adding that it is his ambition also to play for the Socceroos.

In a few months' time, Deankovic, 26, will have been a permanent resident for the three years that are required before you are eligible for Australian citizenship. And once he is naturalised, he's sure to be considered by Arko, who was impressed by Deankovic in Croatia's 2-1 victory over George Cross in the 1986 Gold Cup final.

Unfortunately for cagey fans, they won't be able to compare the full back qualities of Deankovic and Davidson in clashes between Croatia and Hellas this year, because while Davidson plays right back for Australia, he will be in midfield for Hellas.

Manfred Kaltz, the former West German international, is the full back on whom Deankovic has tried to model himself.

"I want to play like he played," he says. "He is strong, big and fast, and he has a very good cross."

Deankovic has had a full of readjusting to do when he came to Australia, but he has had a full back before. He was a centre back with Barova and Osijek back home. "We always played double centre halves at home. One would mark, and the other would sweep, depending what side the action was on."

"When I came here, I thought they didn't know soccer in Australia, but I was very surprised. There is good soccer here. It is not easy for players from overseas. Some players cannot adapt."

"Now I really enjoy playing full back, although Miron Bleiberg tries to make me my a midfielder. I go forward like a midfielder, but I can't myself play full back."

Only 10 ratings were awarded to players during the 1986 World Cup. That went to Deankovic for his performance against George Cross — and to his Croatia team-mates Steve Gojevic and Gary Ward for their roles in a 6-0 victory over Morell Falcons, as well as Heidelberg goalkeeper Jeff Oliver in the final.

Obviously, Deankovic is looking forward to the best season of his career and perhaps to winning the NSL championship, yet it was all so different in 1983.

The Deankovic star began back in Yugoslavia, where he played at youth level for the second division, and graduated to the senior team of Osijek, then coached by Dom Kapetanovic, now the boss of Canterbury Marrickville. Antolovic, who returned late last year to Yugoslavia, also was at Osijek.

Biskic, who had been with Deankovic at Borova, and Antolovic, joined Melbourne Croatia in 1982, and Deankovic followed them three months later.

"At the end of that season, I played all the games under coach Joe Kiss. My last game was in the top four series against Green Gully. Deankovic says:

Then John Gardner became the coach. I'll never forget my first training session under him. He picked up 16 players, and sent the rest of us to train with the reserves at the other side of the ground. He just didn't like me.

"I was out for one and a half years, playing in the reserves, sitting on the bench, coming on for 10 or 15 minutes. I really lost confidence in that time. People did not believe in me. It was a hard time."

Terry Hennessey came from America and took over from Gardner in early 1984 and I thought it would be different now. He was a good coach and he would demand discipline. But after a good start, it was the same as before. The players were the chiefs — Tommy Cumming, Keith Adams and Shaun Parrot. They had had something to say, and Hennessey left. I always got on OK with these players, but they liked a different style of soccer."

Deankovic was considered the best player in Croatia's reserves, and even the reserves' coach, George Train, couldn't understand why Deankovic wasn't being given a go in the first team. Deankovic acknowledges, though, that Croatia had an excellent team, which was by no means easy to break into.

"Tony Curcio was the right back and Ante Bilaver the left back. Then George Hannah came and took over from Bilaver. They were good players, he says.

When Hennessey resigned, Tommy Cumming took over as coach for a while, and I think he and some of the committee pushed me into the team. My first full game after 18 months was against Macedonia in the National Cup. Robert Markovac also played his first game that day. Later, Tony Vrzina took over as coach and we had a run of about 17 games without losing, which was a record for them."

I had to keep playing full back because there was strong competition from Peter Lewis who joined from Green Gully and Jim Campbell who came from Heidelberg. Campbell was on the bench for many games, and Lewis, although he is a right back, was put in as stopper or midfielder so I could keep my position."

Deankovic's confidence has improved even more under Mirko Runje, the senior coach at the end of the 1986 season. "I have more experience now, as well," he says. "Miron is an honest man. He doesn't talk behind your back. He has made the team just like a family. We all talk together about every game and the spirit is excellent. But I don't know how Miron can keep together such a big squad. If he can do it, it will be a miracle."

The latest to join that large squad are Davor Todorovic, a sensational left flanker from Zadar, and striker Ante Ljubic who has returned to Australia after spending the off season back home.

"Todorovic will be a top player in Australia. Keep an eye on him," Deankovic says.

Croatia had hoped to get Antolovic back for the 1986 season, but the club can't count on it, according to Todorovic. "I have spoken to him and he has said he will come back, but I am not sure he will make it over there. He is with Olimpia in the third division. Maybe he will be back for next year."

Deankovic himself, has no intention of going back home in the foreseeable future. "I came here for one year but now it has been four years," he says. "I am buying a flat now, which will take three or four years to pay off."

He and his wife have one child, a daughter, Ivana. His wife's name is Gordana, the same name as Arko's wife. "I must now have the same name as Arko," he laughs. Deankovic jokes.

The Deankovic-Biskic combination on the right flank is one of Croatia's strongest weapons. "We have an excellent understanding because we have played together so long," Deankovic says. "I could be blind, but I would still know where Biskic is. It is not that I want to give the ball only to Biskic all the time, but I trust him and he always makes the right move."

Gary Ward is another fine player. He is the only one who is really stopping goals. Everyone at Croatia knows how to play soccer, but we need someone to score, and that's Ward. Todorovic is more like Biskic, he plays on the side, and he crosses the ball, but he also likes to come inside and he is very strong, so he probably will score more. Ljubic also has a chance to play. He is a good player and he has a good understanding of midfield."

There has been a rumour that Luke Bonacic will be moved to the sweeper's position to make room in midfield for at least one of the new arrivals. Deankovic doesn't think so. "Tony Curcio is very good in the sweeper's position, and I know Miron would like to keep Bonacic in the midfield because he is such a good player. I think that everyone has been playing for himself in some games, but when we play the first ball, and one-twos, we will beat anyone."

Scotland, where he played for Dundee. A huge, imposing figure who can scare off opponents with his booming voice alone.

5. GEORGE HANNAH, 28, left back.

Strong, quiet Scott signed three years ago from the now defunct Hakoah (Vic) where he played as stopper. Still used in that position occasionally to help Melbourne Croatia's ageing back-stoppers. Utterly reliable, he is bullet among team mates as the man who can do no wrong. 1. NSL goals.

6. LUKE BONACIC, 30, midfielder.

One of the most distinguished players in Australian soccer, having played for Heidelberg, Carlton and West Gippsland. Was a team mate of Sydney Croatia coach Vedran Ruzic at Hajduk.

8. JOSIP BISKIC, 30, right-flank, one of the most skilful and exciting players in Australian soccer. Biskic joined Croatian 1982 and has increased his work load from year to year. A potential match-winner, he played for Hajduk in Yugoslavia.

9. STEVE GOJEVIC, 29, stopper. Represented Victoria against West Berlin representative team, 1984. Has scored 8 NSL goals.

6. JIMMY CAMPBELL, 30, central mid-fielder. A tall, solid, fast player who has played in the NSL since its formation in 1977. He arrived from England to join Heidelberg Alexander from where he transferred to Croatia in 1982. A 100% work rate, prolific goalscorer from midfield, Campbell is a natural stopper, always the first to drag back when an attack breaks down. Has played eight games for Australia. Remains the NSL's highest scoring mid-fielder of all time, with 100 goals.

10. LUKE BODORIC, 26, left flanker.

On loan from Zadar, explosive, entertaining striker who loves to take on opponents and shield the ball exceptionally well, he scored in his Croatia debut in the Buffalo Cup semi-final against Sydney.

11. GARY WARD, 28, centre forward.

One of the Buffalo Cup goalscorers, Ward is a prolific goalscorer from midfield, always the first to drag back when an attack breaks down. Has played eight games for Australia. Remains the NSL's highest scoring mid-fielder of all time, with 100 goals.

12. ROBERT MARKOVAC, 32, mid-fielder.

Was in the squad for Australia's first match in the World Youth Championships in 1979. Was a member of the 1982 World Cup team, a product of Croatian junior side. Made his first team debut in 1982 at the age of 16. Has scored 8 NSL goals.

13. TONY REDMOND, 23, centre back.

Signed by Melbourne Croatia from Brisbane Lions, and then switched to Brisbane Lions from where he signed him late last season. 4 NSL goals.

14. MARK ALAJIC, midfielder.

Striker, signed by Melbourne Croatia from a team that played in the World United Championships in China last year. Made his senior debut in the Buffalo Cup 1984.

15. MARK JUNCHIK, 26, left back.

Striker, signed by Melbourne Croatia from a team player who is a product of a reliable and versatile substitute for the seniors.

16. ANTE LJUBIC, striker or mid-fielder.

Temped by injuries, he followed his father, a former international, to the off-season. Yet to show his best Australian soccer. 4 NSL goals.

17. MIRKO JUNCHIK, 31, coach.

Over for the 1986 season, he is the coach of the national youth team.

18. ZARKO OZDOKOV, 30, mid-fielder.

On loan from Hajduk Split, OZDOKOV has made a big impact at his new club.

19. MIRKO BONACIC, 31, coach.

Over for the 1986 season, he is the coach of the national youth team.
